

Imani Jacqueline Brown

Imani Jacqueline Brown is an artist, activist, and researcher from New Orleans, USA. Her work investigates the continuum of Extractivism, which spans from colonial genocide and slavery to contemporary fossil fuel production and manifests as police and corporate impunity. These investigations expose the layers of violence and resistance that comprise the foundations of US society. Imani is a Researcher with Forensic Architecture, as well as an economic inequality fellow with Open Society Foundations.